HOW TO NEVER RUN OUT OF EMAIL/BLOG IDEAS IN 2017 Regardless of Your Niche, Guaranteed!

One of the biggest complaints I hear from fellow marketers goes something like this:

"I'm building a list. And now that I've started, I realize the list building part is easy.

What's hard is finding something to say to my readers in emails. In fact, days and sometimes weeks go by and I haven't sent an email.

When I finally do sit down to write, I'm stressed because I'm afraid readers will have forgotten me.

And I'm just sure that when they see me in their inbox they'll unsubscribe, either because they don't remember me, or because I'm just too dull and boring.

If only I could get in the habit of emailing my list several times a week. But I can't think of anything interesting to write, except "buy this product," so I just keep putting it off.

And then there's blog posting – don't look at my blog, because I haven't posted anything in a month. A month! It's too embarrassing.

I don't know what to write about and if I don't get help soon, I might as well give up.

Any ideas?"

Yes!

In fact, we'll give you 4 awesome methods you can use to have something to write about nearly every single day of the year, and sometimes twice in one day.

The first method

Reporting On News in Your Niche

This one is so simple and easy, yet few list owners and bloggers do it.

Simply stay abreast of breaking news in your niche.

And yes, regardless of what niche you're in, there is news. For example, the dating niche is filled with new studies on human relations, as well as stories about famous relationships – Brad and Angelina, for example.

Thus you can write about the latest study or bit of relationship gossip, and then relate it to your reader and /or to the product you might be promoting that day.

Nutrition? There are non-stop studies and new findings about nutrition. In fact, you'll have to pick and choose because there is simply too much to write about.

Is your niche online marketing itself? Subscribe to all the hottest IM blogs, and keep a few Google alerts going as well. Again, you'll have so much information to convey, you'll be amazed.

The second method:

Using History as Writing Prompts

People are curious to hear what happened "x" number of years ago today – especially if you can relate it to your niche.

Remember, you can use a great deal of creativity in linking one thing to another.

The trick is to start with an engaging story of what happened on such and such a date, and then segue into the present.

"100 years ago today, women got the right to vote." Tell them the story of the intense struggle women went through just to win this basic right.

Then show your readers (male and female) how lucky they are today – simply press a button and they get __ advantage or benefit (supplied by your product.)

See? It's easy. And the possibilities are limitless.

To find out what happened on any day in history, go to

<http://www.history.com/this-day-in-history>

And click on the calendar link. Then choose your date.

Watch for historical events you can tie into your own marketing.

For example, a major crash could be tied to what will happen to your reader's finances if they don't get them in order.

A new life-changing discovery could be tied to your new, life changing product.

And so forth.

The third method...

Use Trivia as Writing Prompts

For example, I just Googled, "Fascinating Trivia."

Clicking on the very first link that came up, I reached a page with 119 trivia facts. Here are the first 5 and how you might use these in an email...

- 1. Oscar the Grouch used to be orange. Jim Henson decided to make him green before the second season of Sesame Street. How did Oscar explain the color change? He said he went on vacation to the very damp Swamp Mushy Muddy and turned green overnight.

After telling this bit of trivia, you might write...

Frankly, I think there's another story behind Oscar's color change, and it's this – Oscar wasn't feeling so good from eating all that trash.

So during the summer break, they put him on a diet of green smoothies.

Oscar felt amazing, but being a Muppet and not a human, he did turn green. And of course they could never tell the audience that Oscar no longer ate trash, hence the cover story.

And by the way, we guarantee that our green smoothies will never, ever turn you green. ;-)

- 2. On Good Friday in 1930, the BBC reported, "There is no news." Instead, they played piano music.*

Holy cow – no news? Can you imagine a day with NO NEWS??? Me neither. I think those guys didn't feel like working that day so they played hooky.

What about you – would you like to play hooky from your job? What if you never had to go to work again? (Segue into your money making product.)

- 3. The 3 Musketeers bar was originally split into three pieces with three different flavors: vanilla, chocolate and strawberry. When the other flavors became harder to come by during World War II, Mars decided to go all chocolate.*

Sometimes simple is better. I've seen weight loss programs that had you preparing and eating different foods 6 times a day. Plus doing different exercises 4 times a day. And generally making things so complicated, nobody could possibly stick with the program for longer than a week.

That's why I like to keep things simple. (Show them how your weight loss program is easy, simple and fits into any schedule. Plus they can eat a 3 Musketeers Bar once a week if they like.)

- 4. Fredric Baur invented the Pringles can. When he passed away in 2008, his ashes were buried in one.*

This one is tough... let me see... thinking... okay, got it:

Could it be that he was buried in a Pringles can because, despite making money from his invention, he never invested it properly?

It's tough being broke when you retire. You have to cut corners every chance you get, even when it comes to your final resting place.

Don't let this happen to you, get our investing course and retire rich.

5. In the 1980s, Pablo Escobar's Medellin Cartel was spending $2,500 a month on rubber bands just to hold all their cash.

This one is drop dead easy – paint a picture of how much cash that must have been, then ask what your readers would do with just 1/1000th that much money. Then of course talk about your make money program.

Trivia is a great tool for thinking of crazy, interesting things to write to your readers. And you know what else works really well?

Our fourth method, which involves all those crazy holiday they keep inventing...

Using Holidays to Make Timely Emails and Blogposts

Nothing is more timely than an email talking about what is happening today.

Fortunately for us marketers, people have been very busy inventing weird, wacky, off-the-wall holidays that we can use to our own advantage.

But first, let's talk about...

How to Create your Own Day

In the U.S., it literally takes an act of Congress to create a new holiday.

But who says you have to make it official with the U.S. federal government, or any government, for that matter?

If you want to create your own holidays, simply declare it to be so on your blog or website.

"Today I am hereby declaring the 27th of June to be Frog Licking Day!" Or whatever suits your fancy and your marketing needs.

Now then...

You might not want to make every day a holiday of your own when you've already got so many strange holidays to work with.

We've researched the entire year, and we've found holidays with marketing potential for most calendar days.

Below you'll find the complete list. Some days don't have a marketable holiday that we could find, so you might take those days off or write about something else.

Other days had two good choices, so we included both.

And you'll also notice that for the first 3 months, we also gave you an idea for each holiday on how it might be used to write an email to your list.

Never again will you be at a loss for writing prompts...

January

1 New Year's Day – Resolutions, goals and how your product can help them achieve their dreams

2 Run up the Flagpole and See if Anyone Salutes Day – write an email that is silly, sarcastic and fun

3 Fruitcake Toss Day – give them 10 uses for that fruitcake they still haven't touched

4 Trivia Day – come up with a few bits of fascinating trivia and tie it in with your niche or product

5 National Bird Day – 'if you were a bird, what kind of a bird would you be' quiz, with 5 imaginary birds based on your niche

6 Cuddle Up Day – suggest they cuddle up with your e-book

7 Old Rock Day – if you sell jewelry this could be useful – or if you consider yourself to be an old fossil (btw, what's a 'new' rock?)

8 Male Watcher's Day – gear this email to anyone who appreciates watching guys ;-)

9 Play God Day – play God and declare a 1 day massive sale

10 Peculiar People Day – tell a story about a unique individual attaining a prized goal

11 Step in a Puddle and Splash Your Friends Day – challenge your readers to do this before the end of the month. Tell them to run (very) fast when they do

12 Feast of Fabulous Wild Men Day – really, the name says it all. Make up your own story to go with the holiday, with your readers as the fabulous wild men and women

13 Friday the 13th – give your readers some good luck with a special deal, today only

13 Make Your Dream Come True Day – coinciding with Friday the 13th – that special deal can do this for your readers – perfect!

14 Dress Up Your Pet Day – find pictures of dressed up pets. Suggest that your readers NOT do this, but instead do something more constructive

15 National Hat Day – as a (marketer, mother, etc.) your readers wear many hats...

16 National Nothing Day – give your readers a day to do... absolutely nothing

17 Ditch New Year's Resolutions Day – have they made it this far? No? Here's what to do instead.

18 Thesaurus Day – find 10 different ways to say your message. Then only use the best 5 (trust me)

19 National Popcorn Day – talk about a movie that relates to your niche or product

20 Penguin Awareness Day – donate 20% of all profits today to The Penguin Foundation

21 National Hugging Day – send your readers hugs (man hugs are okay, too, Bro.)

22 National Blonde Brownie Day – talk about how copycat products in your niche are never as good

23 National Handwriting Day – just for the fun of it, send your readers to this infographic <http://www.pens.com/handwriting-infographic/>

24 Beer Can Appreciation Day and Compliment Day – compliment your readers and raise a beer toast to them

25 Opposite Day – write a VERY short email about opposite day – and do it backwards. (yad etisoppo si yadot) Link to something fun on your blog

26 Spouse's Day – suggest they thank their spouse for being incredibly terrific in every way

27 Punch the Clock Day – an email directed to those who want to quit their job forever

28 Chinese New Year – they get a second chance to start the year over

28 Data Privacy Day – perfect day to sell a product that promotes privacy or security

29 National Puzzle Day – give them a mind bender / brain teaser to work out. All right answers enter a drawing for a free ___

30 Bubble Wrap Appreciation Day – seriously?? Okay, send readers to this, just for the fun of it... <https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=LoaEy7CCC1E>

30 National Inane Answering Message Day – find 5 of the stupidest answering machine messages of all time – good for a laugh

31 Backward Day – show them how doing or thinking backwards makes sense

February

1 National Freedom Day – freedom from (problem your product solves)

2 Ground Hog Day – let people know if he saw his shadow, and what it means – more winter? Do this. Early spring? Do that.

3 The Day the Music Died – Buddy Holly, Richie Valens and the Big Bopper died in a plane crash in 1959. But they left a legacy – what legacy do your readers want to leave when they go?

4 Eat Ice Cream for Breakfast Day – do something fun, like ...

5 Superbowl Sunday – you will be a winner if you...

6 Lame Duck Day – lame duck politicians switch their focus to personal gain. Here's how YOU can make your own personal gain...

7 Wave All your Fingers at Your Neighbor Day – strange and bizarre... okay, what if you write an email about freaking out your neighbors because suddenly you're HOME all the time instead of going to a job. Plus you have a new car, you're remodeling the house, you're going on vacations... you get the idea.

8 Boy Scout Day – celebrates the birthday of scouting – qualities of a scout and how to use them for success in your niche

10 Umbrella Day – shield yourself from whatever comes your way by taking this __ action

11 Don't Cry over Spilled Milk Day – so you still haven't accomplished your goal – stop beating yourself up and do this instead

12 Abraham Lincoln's Birthday – tell the inspiring story of how he failed over and over again, yet become one of the most famous people in history

13 Clean out Your Computer Day – great day to sell a CCleaner upgrade or some other computer cleaner

13 Get a Different Name Day – sell your unused URL's

15 Singles Awareness Day – how to make a fistful of singles using ___ method (okay, we switched the meaning there)

16 Do a Grouch a Favor Day – you can be the grouch in this case. Ask your readers to answer a survey or do something else for you

17 Random Acts of Kindness Day – perform random acts of kindness for your readers – maybe hold a live Q and A or invite questions

18 National Drink Wine Day – tell them how they can celebrate once they invest in your program, because they're finally going to reach that goal of theirs

20 Love Your Pet Day – tell your readers about your pet(s) and invite them to tell you about theirs

21 Card Reading Day – just imagine if you could magically read cards – you'd be the best poker player in the world. Here's how to make that kind of money, even if you can't read cards

22 International World Thinking Day – we could all use more of this – here's the thinking person's method to achieve ___

23 International Dog Biscuit Appreciation Day – did you know that __% of retirees can't afford enough food to eat? Some resort to eating dog food. Don't be one of those people – do this instead

24 National Tortilla Chip Day – dip into savings as we celebrate with a 1 day sale that will make you crunch with delight (stop groaning, I'm doing my best here)

25 Pistol Patent Day – here's how to get your own patent on weight loss, making money, etc.

26 Tell a Fairy Tale Day – tell them a story in which they are the hero, then show them how to do it for real

27 No Brainer Day – such a great deal, it's obviously a no-brainer

28 Mardi Gras / Fat Tuesday – celebrate! Shirts are optional.
